

The Corridor

02.12 – 18.12.2009

PixelPops! 2009

curated by Aoife Rosenmeyer

The Corridor

The Corridor is BolteLang's project space for new commissions, site specific installations and exhibitions. It is a space with restricted dimensions, related to the main gallery only geographically and therefore completely open to experimentation. The inherent conflict between the promise of infinite possibilities and spatial limitation is at the core of The Corridor.

PixelPops! 2009 in The Corridor

The fifth edition of Pixel Pops!, an annual, travelling digital art exhibition, takes place at The Corridor, BolteLang. Films will be shown on two monitors that are positioned to be viewed from outside the gallery, thus echoing the orchestration of desire in shop windows. Curator Aoife Rosenmeyer selected the works following an international call for films that responded to the location, format and thematic of the show. The resulting group of 27 short, silent, films come from Swiss artists and colleagues further afield. At a time of year when dark streets enhance the appeal of commercial displays, these films challenge viewers' expectations; all of them engage directly or implicitly with forms of presentation, thwarted longing and the urban experience.
